

Life Hates You

Mono Inc.

Seven seconds like seven days
Time doesn't pass at all
It's all the same
When love has gone
The fear remains
Nowhere to lay your head down
When it rains

And you wait for conclusion
And the end of your days
Every heartbeat is wasted
For a lifetime betrayed
Where was your part of fortune
From your angle of view

Life hates you
And everything you do
Life hates you
But you hate this life too

A picture frame full of deceit
An empty bed
An empty scene
When love has gone
The void remains
Nobody you can turn to
When it pains

And you wait for the daylight
And you feel incomplete
You wallow in self-pity
And you choke when you eat

Where was your part of romance
From your angle of view

Life hates you
No matter what you do
Life hates you
But you hate this life too

A lonely shell, a lonely home
A mess inside your mind
You're so alone
Love has gone
The flavour stayed
The flavour of a life
And all those brighter better days

And you read all those poems
They describe what you feel
Oh you wish you'd be stronger
You wish you'd be healed
Where was your part of fortune
Nothing left to renew

Where was your part of romance

No you don't have a clue
Where was your part of existence
From your angle of view
Life hates you