

Time To Go

Mono Inc.

It didn't last much longer than the famous blink of an eye
And all that's left are memories and a feeble rest of life
I make my peace and think of all those yesteryears we shared
December daylight fades away the syringe is prepared

My breath is getting shorter
My moves are getting slow
My light is turning pale
I know it's time to go

So join me for the last mile
and stay here till the end
I'm tired but I am scared now
Give me just a little strength
No farewell in the hallway
Just hold me till I close my eyes leave from here

A quiet room
Four tiled walls and people dressed in green
I couldn't tell if behind their masks they commiserate with me
I turn my head
I see your tears as they're sparkling in the light
My body's numb
Come give me some courageousness tonight

My mind is turning slower
My heart is beating low
My lids are heavy-weight
I know it's time to go

So join me for the last mile
and stay here till the end
I'm tired but I am scared now
Give me just a little strength
No farewell in the hallway
Just hold me till I close my eyes leave from here
I leave from here

I'm just a little scared now
So stay with me till the end
No farewell in the hallway
Just hold me till I close my eyes leave from here
