In The End Decides

Mortal Love

For the concept of the supplement -which here determines that o f the representative image- harbors within itself two significa tions whose cohabitation is as strange as it is necessary. The supplement adds itself, it is a surplus, a plenitude enriching another plenitud, the fullest measure of presence. But the supp lement supplements. It adds only to replace. It intervenes or i nsinuates itself in-the-placeof; if it fills, it is as one fills a void...

(Taken from "Of Grammatology" book by Jacques Derrida)