Black God

My Dying Bride

Thy every look and every grace so charm whenever I view thee, 'til death overtake me in the chase still will my hopes pursue thee

Then when my tedious hours have past, be this my last lesson given low at thine feet to breathe my last and die in sight of heaven.