All the failures I had, all the things that I regret. Dirty deeds that I have to forget
No turning back.
Now my choices I have made
Standing tall, I will not be afraid.

Those things I left behind Like the dust swept by the wind. Could I stand with no fear? Even though it might be hard.

Life is a game you can always play until you die. I won't give up, I'll carry on and fight. Like a lightning that strikes to shine on the darkest night, Believe in my faith, survive the deepest dark.

Here I find myself walking down this lonely street. My regrets are now all gone, no more despair. I think that now I'm freed, I finally see the end.

Those things I left behind Like the dust swept by the wind. Could I stand with no fear? Even though it might be hard.

Life is a game you can always play until you die.

I won't give up, I'll carry on and fight.

Like a lightning that strikes to shine on the darkest night,

Believe in my faith, survive the deepest dark.
