

Said you'd take me up this morning from underground from where you left me and your eyes leave you without recognition know that all the idle skies have become to me who you used to be hold your breathe, you know how long do what you can, to forget you were wrong is it ok if i don't care anymore?

we all give up sometimes, and now you said you'd be good enough for me

hope your seein more of yourself then you were ready for all the things that you are now and how good things were before and how you, you left us and pushed us so far behind

hold your breathe, you know how long
do what you can, to forget you were wrong
is it ok if i don't care anymore?
we all give up sometimes, and now you said you'd be
good enough for me

why are you giving up?
why won't you stand your ground? i guess it comes to this a friend, just a friend now

hold your breathe, you know how long
do what you can, to forget you were wrong
is it ok if i don't care anymore?
we all give up sometimes, and now you said you'd be
good enough for me