Lullaby Requiem

Good night, bless you Let angels possess you You make dreams of another life Don't think its too much To close eyes and leave us In strange places we come undone And the building blocks Sometimes have to crash Not meant to last like a mother's love

Its real life, its all true You know how I'll miss you In quiet moments I'll come undone And the building blocks sometimes have to crash Not meant to last like a mother's love

Sleep comes when all is laid to rest Thats when you'll find what you're looking for

Strange feelings you can't explain Mad voices you can't contain And the building blocks Sometimes have to crash Not meant to last like a mother's love Peace comes when fear is laid to rest Thats when you'll find what you're looking for
