Like The Air

It won't take long Till she fades away Will she be strong enough to fight? She tries to survive Trying hard to run But she fails She fails every time she tries to hide

Everyday She's blinded by her pain And she thinks The solution is to become just like the air

Soon she will be gone What reason to hang on? Will she fight? Can she find the strength she needs she needs today? Lights fade in her eyes It's her sacrifice If she fails If she fails today she'll lose it all

What she is turning down (she will become just like the air) Will kill her slowly (she will turn it all down today If she tries to hide she will fail) What she needs most becomes her enemy
