Black

Neurosis

sometimes i feel so far away other times i think i need a change today unwanted feelings of despair from inside and all i want is a place to hide sometimes it makes me really angry other times it gets me really sad but every time it happens the only thing i see is... black, black, black, all i see is...

i just want a little piece of mind away from all my pressures and the daily grind i just want a place where i can be away from all the things that trouble me could things be better at the end of the road? or will the world outside still be cold? for the inner tranquility that i lack turns everything i see black