

Head on Collision

New Found Glory

I've been waiting for a good day I've been holding back long enough I've been hurting to tell you some things it's not the falling of the temperature that's making all our bones run cold it's the breeze you make the presence felt when you're around me

And it feels like I'm at an all-time low slightly bruised and broken from our head on collision I've never seen this side of you another tragic case of feeling bruised and broken
from our head on collision
I've never seen this side of you another tragic case

And I'm still waiting for a good day I think I've held this long enough I think it's safe to tell you some things it's not just what you say to people and it's not the way you look at me it's the way you present yourself for all your worst critics to see

I've never seen this side of you
another tragic case of feeling
bruised and broken
I've never seen this side of you
another tragic case

Then you were gone
you were gone
all this time you just didn't know it yet
you were gone
you were gone

I've never seen this side of you
another tragic case of feeling
bruised and broken
I've never seen this side of you
another tragic case
bruised and broken
another tragic case and I've been still waiting for a good day
still waiting for a good day
