Shadow

New Found Glory

Staring at my shadow I see the world around me never felt as if my existence reflects these walls so proudly intentions of the past defined so quickly it's hard to change myself never mind all of the people around me I try to push it to the side never put the blame on anybody's head but mine I'm still search ing for my pride I'll keep searching but there's so many places for it to hide I try I've tried so hard to change for you