

Lean Back and Fall

New Model Army

Then one night we ventured on too far
The old sun never rose
I searched through the dawn into a new world beyond
Where all that I could want
Was to lean back and fall

We chased each other through those frozen days
Through the coldest winter in fifteen years
We were rising to break like the sea against the shore
Like the land around the sea
As we lean back and fall

Now counting through these useless empty days
Of standing up so tall against the world
And I'm lost, I am lost and I can't trust myself
Now I can't trust myself
I am lost here and I'm doubting myself
And I'm losing myself
As I lean back and fall
