

Walk In The Future

Night Ranger

She lies awake and it's almost
A quarter to two.
The moon's shining so brightly,
It lights up the room
Well, whatever happened,
It shouldn't have done...
But she never places the blame.
She just carries the weight...
Well, maybe it's over now; it's hard to tell,
When your heart isn't shattered
And maybe she's dreaming now,
Believes, somehow
She takes a walk in the future...
Oh...Well you can imagine how she must feel
Livin' alone day and night, it all becomes real
Well she takes a ride on a paper airplane,
In circles around the sun
And she won't be comin' home...
And maybe it's over now; it's hard to tell,
When the truth doesn't matter...
And maybe she's dreaming now,
Believes, somehow
She takes a walk in the future...
(Walk in the future)
Under the rainbow she goes
(Someone is singing her song)
Over and over again (Walks in the future...)
Well, she takes a ride on a crowded airplane
It's headed straight for the sun...
And she won't be coming home
And maybe it's over now; it's hard to tell,
When your heart isn't shattered...
And maybe she's dreaming now,
Believes, somehow
She takes a walk in the future...
(Walk in the future...)
And maybe it's over now; it's hard to tell,
When the truth doesn't matter...
And maybe she's dreaming now,
Believes, somehow
She takes a walk in the future...
Walk in the future...
Walk in the future...
