

So Long (Still I Wonder)

Nightingale

It's morning again.

I wish all the emptiness would end and my friend would return.

Though I know that you're still alive, I'm scared, I'm almost paralyzed

Of the emotions that's growing inside. And something is missing

And when I take a look around me, it's like I see you everywhere,

Anywhere.

So long, still I wonder why. So long, and my river runs dry,

And I know all the secrets you know, But I don't know where to go.

Life must go on, though it is hard not to end it all.

I wish I had known what you knew. I'm blaming myself.

The shadow is oh, so strong, its power distorted my view.

And something is missing.

And when I take a look around me, it's like I see you everywhere,

Everywhere.
