Home Now

I'm hanging out with me And you're a vacant chair A chosen compromise This space we rarely share And if you lived here you'd be home now So what you givin' up for me? And what shall I give up for you? Aimless expectations passing by If you lived here you'd be home now If you lived here you'd be home now And to make it real I need to have you here I need to have you I need to hold you Barren wasted heart Neglect of normalcy And if you lived here you'd be home now Oh if you lived here you'd be home now And to make it real I need to have you here I need to have you It can't be sincere Unless you spend time here I need to see you... Supervision is what I need Some consistence, tangibility Some casual light days Part of the furniture I want to take you for granted And see you regular So what you givin' up for me? And what shall I give up for you? The separations tired, it's been too long And to make it real I need to have you here I need to have you It can't be sincere Unless you spend time here I need to see you I need you...

Come home now

No Doubt
