

Because you always had a broken heart
That I know because you always cry
Everybody knows you often walk alone at night
And return with the perfect lie

Yeah you always had a broken heart
You know where you really want to be
And everybody knows you really don't belong with her
I'm amazed that she still can't see
You know what you want but not what you want to be

Now you're living day by day like you never going to take a chance but I don't know
Now you're living day by day you don't care about the consequence still I don't know

You you're living in a broken world where you can't get the pieces right
And everybody knows that you understand what's wrong you're the part that won't fit alright
Spread the pictures on the floor light it up let them burn some more
And if the pictures not on you walk away never stay turn around for a different view

Curtain falls for everyone if you never going to live
And what's the point of everything If you never going to give
But I know that all you want is somewhere else right now
If you go you'll find what you've been looking for some how