

That Day

Nonpoint

It wasn't just the words that were thrown around,
It was the sound that they made when they hit the ground runnin'.

You were out for blood,
And I was still tapped out from the battle before!

I remember the smell in the room,
It was a bad tattoo like cheap perfume.

Waiting with the windows open,
Just hoping that the sun breaks through for a moment!

The days turned to weeks, months into a year,
I gotta bring up all the things that I want her to hear.

Then the same old pat on the back,
It all work out,
And everything will be alright!

Losing sight of reality while losing the fight to try to forget,
All I have are the memories of every single word you said.
Every single word you said.

I remember that day,
Everything changed.
I remember that day,
That image never fades away.
I remember that day,
Something died inside of me.
I remember that day,
That everything changed.

It wasn't just a senseless situation,
No sense of making something out of nothing now.

I know it would be pointless at this point,
It's hard to point out any problems now!

Are you forgetting that rumors and reputation
Don't help your situation.

When all you have to show the world,
Is how you act out your problems like a little girl!

And if memory serves me right,
You were serving up nothing but a plate of lies.

And it was covered in flies,
Rotten from the inside out,
Excuse my words as I put it in my mouth!

Yeah, losing sight of reality while losing the fight to try to forget,
All I have are the memories of every single word you said.
Every single word you said.

I remember that day,
Everything changed.

I remember that day,
That image never fades away.
I remember that day,
Something died inside of me.
I remember that day,
That everything changed.

You say I have a problem now.
I think we have a problem here.
You say I have a problem now.
I say there is no way for us out of here!

I remember that day,
Everything changed.
I remember that day,
That image never fades away.
I remember that day,
Something died inside of me.
I remember that day,
Everything changed.

I remember that day,
That everything changed.
I remember that day,
That image never fades away.
I remember that day,
Something died inside of me.
I remember that day,
That everything changed.
That everything changed.