

Behind those halls yonder, above the caliginous enigma
Where soul and spirit unite, there lies buried everything I have

Where we left the quiet sanctuary that united us on this side
To be separated for aeons, enchained in eternity

I lost you when I am chased away yet again
Yet your feeble remnants adore them
I am torn away even from the area of ground that covers you
Which was the very last thing I had of you

I lost you when I am chased away yet again
Yet your mortal remains rest peacefully and purely

Whatever part of this earth will retain them
Passing the world beyond, I'll be with you

This is our heart, our mind, our conscience
Our soul no longer belongs to us
Returning home to eternal freedom
Begin a new course, ennoble our essence

In the latter we find one law and one purpose
A purpose that can not be from this world
Beyond abyss through which blackness shines in

Behind those halls, where soul and spirit unite
There lies buried everything I have in the Prismal Dawn