I Found You

When you whisper I just hear no noice When you're absent I miss your voice When I'm still here When you still care... Words are too far from my lips

I found you A tiny thing between the sheets A breathing bliss So much expression In such an empty air I found you But now you're not even here!

How could I be so empty headed? How could I let the windows stay unlucked?

I found you A tiny thing between the sheets A breathing bliss So much expression In such an empty air You found me But then you disappeared!