

Postpone The Bad

Oh Land

I decide to postpone all the bad
I try not to sing when I'm sad
And in the end it is a brighter day;
There's just a few words I gotta say:
From the corporeal aspect of my heart
My thoughts are picking me apart

I'll leave all emotions inside
Find strange places for tears to hide;
But after all there's just one thing
There's a song I gotta sing
From the corporeal aspect of my heart:
My thoughts are tearing me apart, tearing me apart

There's an admission to get in here
I have to get a better price
I won't confront my fear
Aren't you suspicious that I'm so clear?
The distance overriding me
Every time I get near

All these feelings, creepin'
It is what I don't see I believe in
All those fractures bleedin'
If you never crush it you won't need healing
Miss you, I do miss you
Never too soon for you to be too late

There's an admission to get in here
I have to get a better price
I won't confront my fear
Aren't you suspicious that I'm so clear?
The distance overriding me
Every time I get near

We agreed to postpone all the bad
We tried hard to never be sad
And in the end it was a bitter day
There was just too much we had to say
From the corporeal aspect of our hearts:
The song was tearing us apart