Trained bodies in coordination

Is that a better way for bunker soldiers

But it's a nicer way to spend the war

On lava beaches and sandy seasides The rusting bodies are surplus now then We never taught them how to fight like that

The object's exercise is so compulsive It's not a better way but it still suits us I'd give up rice fields to fight like you

Waves of people in strange directions It's no use talking, there's no decisions They gave up houses to be refugees

The mud in ditches is over their knees
The sandbagged trenches are over our heads
This kind of warfare's become hide and seek

Though khaki uniforms are universal Your propaganda is losing appeal I'd give up rice fields to fight like you I'd give up rice fields to fight like you I'd give up rice fields to fight like you I'd give up rice fields to fight like you
