

The rain falls, the snow storms
The gods unleash their wrath
The summer comes, sunlight swarms
Fairies of magic laugh

The green of leaves forsakes now
To be exchanged with gray
Before the king of winter bow
And begin your wish to say

As autumn falls upon us
And we wait for a sign
Waiting for the cold to pass
Absorb it if we can
To warmth I lust
The swan song of a man

For all you believers
This darkness I make mine
The freeze sends its shivers
Up and down my spine

Seasons unite, shining above my eyes

The heat soon brings desire
Burning my veins like fire
The truth is actually a lie
I watch myself burning higher

Flesh to flesh we bind
Yours is winter and summer is mine
Could this be the end of the line
Or a beginning (that shall) eternally shine
