There's nothin' you can say, nothin' you can do There's nothin' in between, you know the truth Nothin' left to face, there's nothin' left to lose Nothin' takes your place

When they say you're not that strong You're not that weak, it's not your fault And when you climb up to your hill Up to your place, I hope you're well

There's nothin' left to prove, there's nothin' I won't do
There's nothin' like the pain I feel for you
Nothin' left to hide, nothin' left to feel
I'm always here

When they say you're not that strong You're not that weak, it's not your fault And when you climb up to your hill Up to your place, I hope you're well

What you want, what you lost What you had, what is gone is over What you got, what you love What you need, what you have is real

It's not enough, it's not enough
It's not enough, it's not enough, I'm sorry
It's not enough, it's not enough
It's not enough, it's not enough

When they say you're not that strong You're not that weak, it's not your fault And when you climb up to your hill Up to your place, I hope you're well

It's not enough, no
It's not enough
It's not enough
