

Sun Dance

Ozark Henry

i was wandering somewhere down below through some hallway you have never seen the walls where as if soaked in oil but no doors, it seems just a mirror, out front a seat but the mirror's not reflecting it it's how you disappear on me every time you fall asleep rays we look for, light we hope to find the ties that bind us

knots we should solve right so keep on dancing, keep your stride

this easily defines enough snow falls down i'm eating soil it's thicker than the blood you cough but we keep on moving right

i was wandering somewhere down below
through some hallway you have never seen
the walls where as if soaked in oil
but no doors, it seems
just a mirror, out front a seat
but the mirror's not reflecting it
it's how you disappear on me
every time you fall asleep

rays we look for, light we hope to find
the ties that bind us
knots we should solve right
so keep on dancing, keep your stride