

Dryad of the Woods

Pain Of Salvation

"Then came a girl
A dryad of the woods
with a sing over her door saying
"If you enter
You must forgive me everything!"
With a heart too big and brave
To let me dissapear
And still I hear
"May I sleep at your feet?"
And so she went over my fence
And reached out a hand That I had to take
That I just had to take

...love
never let me
lose that love
never let me
lose that love
never let me
lose that love
never...

Sometimes, forgiving will just take you one step too far and you find yourself on Remedy Lane

Sometimes forgiving is too much like self abuse

Sometimes forgiving leaves too much sear tissue behind

Even if I could one day learn to forgive you everything Could I learn to forgive myself?

probably
I simply didn't understand the full notion of the world
forgive"
