Full Throttle Tribe

Pain Of Salvation

I never signed onto this mankind No color, race or creed felt truly mine Never had a country or a flag And never had a culture, kin or kind

I could never really belong Too loud Too wild Too silent or too shy Too everything is what defines my mind

I've throttled back I've dialed myself down I'm done with that I built myself a sun

Will you follow me? Will you follow me?

This will be my tribe, my family This will be my flag and nation This will be my creed, my legacy Will you follow me? This will be my tribe, my family This will be my generation This will be my life, my legacy Will you follow me?

With me, I promise you will see Things that your friends never get to see I'll be too much There will be no enough But we'll set the flame to everything we touch

I'll take it too far and drive it too hard We'll fall And find ourselves alone Down on red with no way to get home A reckless ride But it'll be worthwhile You'll remember it with longing and with pride

Will you follow me?

This will be my tribe, my family This will be my flag and nation This will be my creed, my legacy Will you follow me? This will be my tribe, my family This will be my flag and nation This will be my creed, my legacy Will you follow me?

Out there People wait and cheer While I'm stuck here Behind this empty stare I turn the shower tap Turn it all the way up To burn this soul away I lost a dream today Lost thirty years today

(x2) This has been my tribe, my family
This has been my flag and nation
This has been my creed, my legacy
Will you follow me?
Now it's only me
This has been my tribe, my family
This has been my generation
This has been my life, my legacy
Will you follow me?
