True Belief

Paradise Lost

Wretched will, host of pleasure surreal Closed the room where the last is buried

Rise or fall at your master's request You're unable to accept redemption

I don't know about a true belief here With the "lost" it's the same as always

All I want is the same, a true belief

You can't wait to become a memory With the "weak" it's the same as always

Stand confused lack of comprehension, Re-aroused by a thought of madness

And I know that the truth is always right But it's time to search for lies You're the one I try to save But the blood spills from your veins

Call counting time till the end Death's wicked smile never fails The curse is cast, you've lost the past Forevermore, a candle burns here no more

I don't know about a century of life When the love of generations die

I can see no good in taking your own life When any moment death calls...

All I want is the same, a true belief
