The Unnatural Conception In Two Parts

Paramaecium

THE BIRTH AND THE MASSACRE OF THE INNOCENTS

The embryo implants the uterine lining, folding within it's amn iotic abode

The gut and neural tubes forming in conjunction Cardiac impulse with foetal brain function

The journey was harsh, days on the road in the dirt

The young couple compelled by the census taker to reach the Cit y of David

The time came for the birth of her firstborn but no lodgings we re found

So, wrapped in strips of cloth, the child was placed in an anim al feeding trough

In the absence of relations

The human paternal genome left in want

The Word became flesh and blood through the unnatural conception

The uterine contractions are a source of pain
The agonising passage through cervix dilating
Vacating the endometrium the child emerges, afterbirth, initial respiration

Infanticide has gripped Ephrath, mothers cry as their children die

His Highness, his wickedness, Herod the Great Has slaughtered the innocents for his excruciating jealousy

The Magi had informed Herod of the birth of a king

His unbridled ambition was crushed by the arrival of the Christ He consulted the chief priests and scribes as to the place of b irth

Then, with his throne in thought, the ugly violence of the murd ers were wrought

But too late for the child of promise had fled to western lands

The Word became flesh and blood through the unnatural conceptio $\ensuremath{\mathbf{n}}$

Thus the Christ of prophecy was born
