Underlegend

Raped woman lough at their strech minds Unborn babies so happy Because they've never tasted an oxygen Bloody victims march right through their promised land The land of never ending war

Little girls and their cashmere eyes Are crying in a front of steel mirrors Revolted trees That used to be green They're not green anymore Few buildings That used to be warm homes Ran away And left their sad fire places

Pati Yang