Overture

Patrick Wolf

It's wonderful what a smile can hide

If the teeth shine bright and it's nice and wide

It's so magical all you can keep inside

And if you bury it deep no one can find a thing, no

So come on now, open wide, open up now Don't you think it's time

To look back at that boy on his way to school Such a heavy heart, such a heavy jewel hiding Something that one day he'll sell But now if no one shows, no one tells a thing, no

So come on love, open wide, open up now Don't you think it's time

Now after all these years you are at last opening was it Worth all that war just to win So caught up in the speed of the days in your sin Don't forget how the story begins no Don't forget now

Now I'm seeing all your lovers and enemies They've been turning their keys so full of need All trying to see that sure you keep What makes it shine, what makes it mine But I don't care, no

Just come on now, open wide, open up now There's so much love for what you'll find But what will you find

Now after all these years you are at last opening $\mbox{\tt Was}$ it worth all that war just to win

If it was can you take me back to where it begins Come and take me back to where it begins Come and take me back to where it begins Come on, open wide and let some light in

Let us in Let us in