Gone Again

Patti Smith

Hey, now man's own kin We commend into the wind Grateful arms, grateful limbs Grateful soul he's gone again ... he's gone again

I have a winter's tale A vagrant hearts relent prevail Sow their seed into the wind Seize the sky and they're gone again

Fame is fleeting God is nigh We raise our arms to Him on night We shoot our flint into the sun We bless our spoils and we're gone, we're gone

Hey, now man's own kin We commend into the wind Grateful arms, grateful limbs Grateful heart gone again

Here a man, man's own kin He turned his back and his own people shot him And he fell on his knees before the burning plane And he beheld fields of gold his land, his sun And he arose his blood aflame The clouds pressed with hand prints stained

One last breath the sky is high The hungry earth the empty vein The ashes rain death's own bed Man's own kin into the wind

One last breath hole in life Love knot tied braid undone Child born the hollow horn Warrior cried a warrior died

One last breath lick of flame Spirit moaned spirit shed The heavens fed man's own kin Grips the sky and he's gone again

Hey, now man's own kin We lay down into the wind Grateful arms, grateful limbs Grateful heart he's gone again

Hey, now man's own kin He ascends into the wind Grateful heart, grateful limbs Grateful man he's gone again