I See a Million People

Peggy Lee

I see a million people, but all I can see is you. I hear a million voices, but only your voice comes through. I wait for your footsteps, I've waited before, I know if it's you if you knock at my door, I know you're around by the sound of my pounding heart!

I see a million faces, but what do I really see? A million little traces keep bringing you back to me; And try as I may to forget to care, What can I do if you're always there? I see a million people, but all I can see is you!
