One Reason

Pennywise

You take the best away From me then give it all away You can't control yourself For anyone Don't think that you could ever see That things are not the same You can't control yourself For anything

Give me one reason to stop your fall Give me one reason to Answer Your call Give me one reason why I should care at all

Don't think you could understand But logic rips away The mask that you put on For everyone You feel it slipping from your hands Still you manipulate You can't control yourself For Anything

Give me one reason to stop your fall Give me one reason to Answer Your call Give me one reason why I should care at all

Let someone look inside at what's Behind the mask where you hide A mixture of pain and pride the real You that's been Denied

Won't you give me one reason?

Give me one reason to stop your fall Give me one reason to Answer Your call Give me one reason why I should care at all
