Play me a song...
Play me a song
Sing your heart out
Expecting the sun
I got what I wanted and it wasn't enough
I got what I wanted when you showed up
I got what I wanted and it's never enough

I drove out to the white trash beach On a brief vacation I'd felt freer than I had in a long time I wondered if it's cause you were gone

I got what I wanted when you showed up I got what I wanted and it's wasn't enough I got what I wanted when you showed up I got what I wanted and it's never enough

Surfers protect the actors from flashers Fathers and sons talk it out like brothers The water doesn't sting as much in the summer The waves can carry you home

To the girl with the shapes and another life A freckled complexion and squinting eyes You want so much to tell her but it feels like a lie

I got what I wanted and it's wasn't enough I got what I wanted when you showed up I got what I wanted and it's never enough..never enough

When you talk it makes me cringe you want so bad to have meaning But you're empty and draining You're so 4th street I can't take it I know I shouldn't care But you're life's intersecting where mine's disconnecting But you're life's intersecting where mine's disconnecting

I got what I wanted when you showed up I got what I wanted and it's wasn't enough I got what I want when you showed up I got what I wanted and it's never enough..never enough that could be bad for u both
