

Altar Ego

Petra

I can tell by the look on your face
It's another day of fasting
I can tell by the length of the shadow
That your face is casting
And you look both ways before you pray
Just to see who's watching you today

It's just your altar ego and it's so hard to know
Beneath the piety and hidden vanity begins to show
It's just your altar ego and you don't even know
And you won't even grow 'til His Spirit strikes a bow
To your altar ego

You love to be seen by men
In all the public places
And you always pick the best of the seats
You've got the social graces
Can you be so proud of respect you've won
When your left hand knows what the right has done

Turn around and face the One
Who knows your heart
He knows your heart
