

Darkness At Noon

Phideaux

I am standing by the wire
Where there's nothing seen for miles
Oh, hold me back against the rain
Oh no, feel my feet again

On a train of human cargo
I was standing in the crush
The rush to feel the air against my skin
Might never feel that again

On the train that brought me here
I was separated from you
They can drag my body broken
But that's all that they can do

No I won't
Feel the weight of the stone
I won't wait
Until the ground is my home
