

Let the Thunder Roll

Pink Cream 69

Like the sun turns the night to day
We became what the seasons made
There will be evolution - in time

But you won't hear what I've got to say
The voodoo man soon will guide the way
With all the secrets and mysteries he portrayed.

Keep the wonders in your mind
The tales of yore are hard to find
What's the message you've been told
Of a world beyond the places that surround you now?

Dust and bones on a mounds of stone
Risen up from the great unknown
And it's so hard to believe that it was pure will

And all these fables just tell the half
I can't smile but I've gotta laugh
Fear has been a patron of the un-wise

Keep the wonders in your mind
The tales of yore are hard to find
Keep the message you've been told
In a place beyond the logic and the reason.

Looking back, enchanting times
We struggle to become what we are now
Like a storm will take its toll
Let the thunder, let the thunder roll.
Want to fly, then spread your wings
Before the winds just pass you by again
There's so much beyond control
So let the thunder, let the thunder roll.

It's a long road to walk alone
So many ways are uncharted
So just open yourself to
Common sense and contradiction
