

When the storm won't end on your raging sea
When you've all but given up float back to me
When the waves come down and your arms get weak
When you're tired of bailing out float back to me

'Cause I can see sunlight through my window
If you open your eyes you'll find your way back home
Sunlight through my window
If you open your eyes you'll find your way back home

When you're all alone stuck in the dark
When you've lost your way in life I won't be far
When the seasons change and you fall apart
When the winter chill is near I won't be far

'Cause I can see sunlight through my window
If you open your eyes you'll find your way back home
Sunlight through my window
If you open your eyes you'll find your way back home

Baby can you hear me?
Come home
Baby I need you near me
Come home, home, home

'Cause I can see sunlight through my window
If you open your eyes you'll find your way back home
Sunlight through my window
If you open your eyes you'll find your way back home

Well, it's lonely now in this hotel room
And these sheets are empty love, waiting for you
