

Sail The Wildest Stretch

Powderfinger

If you had your time over again
Would you do it all the same?
Down through all the twists and bends
Are there moments you'd erase?

Would you just leave me standing
In the doorway frozen through?
Waiting on the coldest comfort from you

And if your course could be reset,
Would you steer your ship my way?
Or would you sail the wildest stretch
Just to feel the force of the waves?

Would you just leave me waiving
On the dock as you pull away?
Savouring the bitter taste

And if the mirror don't reflect
The illusion you made
You could stop and take a breath
Feel the damages weight

Fade in the silence

If you had your time over again
If you had your time over again
Would you sail the wildest stretch?
If you had your time over again
