Bring You Down

Power Of Dreams

Johnny's got something to say Says he'll say it someday Has to go away for a year Away from his family He was always young And they were always old No one listens anyway So he'll move away Bring you down

Now he's got a brand new home I knew he'd get it some way Living in another place Away from his homeland But he was always wrong And they were always right At least that's what they like to think Open your minds Bring you down

He doesn't want to go away But how can he stay? Doesn't want to leave this life But life doesn't pay But he was always right And they were always wrong It's just that they're too blind to see Open your eyes Bring you down