If There Was a Man

The Pretenders

If there was a man I could dream of I'd dream about a dream come true If there was a man I could ever love I'd wait a million years for someone just like you

All my life I have been waiting Never taking any chances, always hesitating Where's the prayer, where's the glory Where's the one I'm holding out for When's he walking through the door The one that you walked through If he isn't you

If there was a man I could dream of I'd dream about a dream come true If there was a man I could ever love I'd wait a million years for someone just like you

Happy endings never find me I put all my fantasies and hopes of love behind me Saw my moments overdoomed but If there was a man out there for me I wish it would be Someone who could love me too If someone was you
