

Now I take the final step To revelation's end
The trail I've bled through snowy footprints stretch in cruel descent
Bones of brothers dot the cliffs still sinking in the distance
Face first into mystery I plunge my weary head

there inside the white I see...

In the shining you will greet me
As my memories turn to mist
Upon this snowy mountain
It all comes down to this
I finally find the meaning
Of every single step
Forever I'm a memory
'Cause you are all there is

Questions fade in memory's wake I see in parallels
The passage I have traveled was not of the physical
The conflict which has claimed my life was where I bid farewell
To die for something greater is all that we could live for

Every single moment.
Every memory.
Was just a small reminder.
That you were with always with me.

Every disappointment.
Every agony.
Every peak and every valley.
Melts into your hands.

There is nothing left to say.
There is nothing left to prove.
There is nothing left to live for.
I remember no more.

I do not recall what came before.
I am one with the light.
I do not recall what came before.
I remember no more.