

Remember The First Day

Promise of Redemption

Well I remember the first day
It was so close to the end of May
It's when I finally opened my eyes
I saw the sun for the first time
Oh and it lied in the form of a beautiful girl
Who would take me on the ride of my life
And it's just something that I've been dying to know

Well where did you go?
Cause I've been waiting here so long
You know that I've been reading your notes
They always hinted towards the fact that you were coming home
And as I struggle with this reality
That this is all that's left of me
Half of my heart, my mind, and my body are gone

We were side by side in the same town
And when I finally opened my mouth
The right words just flew out
Oh it was such an amazing sound
When I got the courage to tell you
You're a beautiful girl
And I want you by my side, and in my life
Cause it's just something that I've been dying to know

Well where did you go?
Cause I've been waiting here so long
You know that I've been reading your notes
They always hinted to the fact that you were coming home
And as I struggle with this reality
That this is all that's left of me
Half of my heart, my mind, and my body are gone

So let's go back down to the bank of that river where
We can dive right in
And forget about the worries from the world outside
Cause you know my world, my world's not over
Because I have an angel on my shoulder

So where did you go? Cause I've been waiting here so long
You know that I've been reading your notes
They always hinted towards the fact that you were coming home
And as I struggle with this reality
That this is all that's left of me
Half of my heart, my mind and my body are gone
