

Before We Say Goodbye

Prozak

When the sun goes down
And all the pieces crumble around
You feel you scream much can't make a sound
You'll never make it out alive
Before we say goodbye

We're are on the edge now tell me you can feel it coming
So much left to say before the end before there's nothing
Hard to put it in words because I know we're running
Out of time see the signs man its all so numbing
All these tragedies and worldwide calamities
Humanity panicking scrambling man it's insanity
And memories is all we'll have and all we'll ever be
So when the curtains fall relax your soul and set it free
No use to fight it cause you can't press rewind
And you can't change the hands of time
No matter which way you slice it
If the sun doesn't rise then there is no sense in crying
And we dissolve back to dust
And enjoy the eternal silence
Where there is no pain no blame no hate inside us
And there is no shame no rage no acts of violence
No more chains or restrains to enslave or confide us
Finally free at last

I pray for all of you regardless of the god you choose
May you find some peace of mind and rest amongst the solitude
Take comfort and finally understand the magnitudes
To gratitude for the life that has been granted to me and you
Reach your inner pinnacle this is critical
No matter how difficult before we diminish the minerals
To put it simple life is an infinite symbol of emotions
Time and space existing outside your window
So you better find your place in this race and it's essential
To conveyed the faith and embrace the days before they dwindle
Without a trace to the grave you will be placed in the middle Forsaken and laid to waste so shamefully superficial
And its all perspective inclusive collective Illusive perception and lucid deception
It seems we are down to nothing all we have left is each other
