

Coyotes In B Major

Punchline

Covered in thumbtacks
And wearing the legs of an ape costume
In the desert at high noon
My heads shaved down the middle
Got a rat on my shoulder
I try and look forward, but a paper clips on my eye lids.
So painfully there.

I'm sporting this dumb grin in a restaurant t-shirt.
This excruciating headache's only getting worse.
The b cups had me standing where they last stopped moving me
I punish myself metaphorically for you all the time.

What happened?
What happened?
What happened last night?
Did we do what I think we did?
Coyotes sing inside the cavern where we hid
I wouldn't change it
In fact I'd turn the clock around
To sing this chorus
A disclaimer of sound

I think we should just be friends
I think we should just be friends
I think we should just be friends
And see if it ever happens again.

Walking up a hill with a thousand little holes
And I'm blindfolded, high heels and a beak on my nose
I'm pulling a ship, that's pulling a building.
I'm barely exaggerating, this heat is exasperation
Maybe it's 80 in a blue LA sky
But I'm perched on the cross around your neck in my mind
The sounds inside us, the animal spirit
We're not quite to the point of a genius civilization yet.

What happened?
Oh, what happened?
What happened last night?
Did we do what I think we did?
Coyotes sing inside the cavern where we hid
I wouldn't change it
In fact I'd turn the clock around
To sing this chorus
A disclaimer of sound

I think we should just be friends
I think we should just be friends
I think we should just be friends
And see if it ever happens again.

It started pretty simple,
Your favorite drink
This one's on me.
But now I've lost a friend cuz it's still too hard to see

I think we should just be friends
I think we should just be friends
I think we should just be friends
And see if it ever happens again.

What happened last night?
I still don't remember
Cause it's easier, it's easier
I wouldn't change it
In fact I'd turn the clock around
To sing this chorus
A disclaimer of sound

I think we should just be friends
I think we should just be friends
I think we should just be friends
And this could never happen again.
Unless it happens again.
