The Highland

Highland green you know my heart A life under open skies The scent so different out here in the wild A land so fair where the free eagle flies

I could walk here a thousand years Your beauty will never grow old The rain that caresses my face Will never make me feel cold Inside I will never feel cold

Stranded in a fairytale Where's the lady of the lake The white deer that eludes the hunter Are they here, I wonder

Highland green you know my heart Nothing can ever tear us apart Longing for your simple ways Fill my dreams, steal my days

Call me a clansman if I am of worth A child of bygone days A promise of serenity Is what you give to me To me

For my your thunder is a friend And lightning so innocent

Gladly I'm heeding your call My fortune is always to see Our ways are connected An elusive place deep in me A place deep in me

Stranded in a fairytale Where's the lady of the lake The white deer that eludes the hunter Are they here, I wonder

Highland green you know my heart Nothing can ever tear us apart Longing for your simple ways Fill my dreams, steal my days

Call me a clansman if I am of worth A child of bygone days A promise of serenity Is made for me

From the mountain top To the valleys so deep Your promise cleanses me It is mine to keep

Highland green you know my heart

Pyramaze

Nothing can ever tear us apart Longing for your simple ways Fill my dreams, steal my days
