

i look around at all my friends and what their hearts are wearing rosaries of anti-joy i look around at where the rainbows end inside their jaded eyes i know there must be more to this crazy life but there's comfort in the light look away from me now when you look my way again i will not feel the same i will not feel this pain look away from me now when you look way again i will not feel this shame i will not feel this rain on my skin
i look around at all this fear and hesitation that we feel orbiting our own private universe it makes me laugh the way i recycle each emotion i have a million times until it passes the test of proving i'm still blessed look away from me now when you look my way again
i will not feel the same i will not feel this pain
look away from me now when you look way again i will not feel this shame i will not feel this weight of the world upon human shoulders it's a long way it's a long road it's a long way to get home... i look around at all my friends and how their hearts are breaking underneath the weight of possibility and it's so hard to keep your faith when all you can see is the pale blue ocean sky falling down but there's wisdom underground
it's a long way it's a long road
it's a long way to get home...
look away from me now when you look my way again
i will not feel the same i will not feel this pain i will i will i will... live my heart