What Do You Want the Boy to Do?

Bonnie Raitt

So you think the man is crazy He eats up your lies Like they're good for him Apple pie, he don't even cry

He's not a fool He's just tryin' to do what his heart says to To love you

As you take to the wind To the wind again my friend As he breaks down within Within, within, within He waits for you patiently Hopin' that one day you'll see That all he really wants to be Is yours and yours alone eternally

What do you want the boy to do? Don't you see you're breaking the child in two? What do you want the boy to do? All he really wants is you

He knows what you are Still he'll be up game Saved the world today But you know better You don't go around him

Now and then you promise All the way out things that you're gonna get You will see, you will be, so damn glad that you finally found him

As he watches you come and go Or you show As he watched you promise a zero He waits for you patiently Hopin' that one day you'll see That all he really wants to be Is yours and yours alone eternally

What do you want the boy to do? Don't you see you're breaking the child in two? What do you want the boy to do? Don't you see that you're breaking the child in two?