Courage born from despair

So many years, we talked about the changing of life all the things we done is self-destruction all the time systems laughing about inability for unity scene against scene a diversion from the real enemy!

What's happening there might's right they close the doors eyerybody knows what else has git to happen before enough oppression we've seen, too much injustice for me we're one mankind need no leaders to be free once more we cry for freedom step out of my way a million different voices same hopes for you and me together on this way can't get it out of my mind with courage born from despair everything will be allright!

now we have payed enough for all these wasted years let's kick away all sadness and the tears fortune favours the brave climbing up from the grave it's in your hands one change for one life

Despair Warning, Despair Warning
