

Enough for You

Ray Price

I've lived enough to know that love's not everything you need
And God knows I know there's still so many things you want to be

I've seen enough to understand the pain you're going through
It's just a shame to know I'm not enough for you

It hurts to see the hurt beneath your laughter and your lies
And try in vain to free the painful secret locked behind your eyes

And I can't even blame you for the things you're turning to
It's just a shame to know I'm not enough for you

I've given you the best of everything I had to give
And now there's nothing left for me to leave you but my will to live

I hope some day somebody somewhere loves you like I do
It's just a shame to know I'm not enough for you
It's just a shame to know I'm not enough for you